In The Man from Primrose Lane, a crime writer investigates the strange and spell-binding murder of the "man with the thousand mittens," while in Before the Poison, a composer moves into a house, where a man was supposedly murdered by his wife fifty years earlier, and begins to unearth startling secrets about the case.

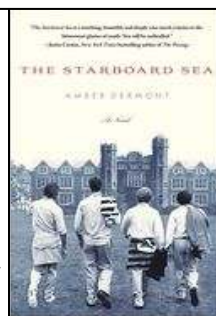

The epic story of friendship between Achilles and Patroclus is told amidst the backdrop of the Trojan War in The Song of Achilles. In The Dressmaker, a young seamstress is caught in a love triangle aboard the Titanic, but after the ship sinks, her life becomes more complicated due to the personal tragedies from the disaster.

On a Mississippi plantation before the Civil War, a healer is hired to destroy a plague sweeping through the slave population, but when she recognizes the "gift" in a young slave, Granada (who has been taken in by the mistress of the plantation), a domestic battle of wills ensue in this heart-wrenching, atmospheric novel.

A young man's life is torn upside down after the suicide of his friend and subsequent transfer to another academy, where he meets and falls in love with Aidan, a girl with her own troubled past in this powerful debut novel about life and death, friendship and love, the adult cost of teenage recklessness and the power of forgiveness.
